

INTERNSHIPS TO HELP DEVELOPMENT OF FUTURE INFORMATION DATABASE

Engineering for the Earth is seeking high school and college interns to help with research to build a comprehensive state-by-state database of information to support sustainable technology. Work on the database will start by collecting zoning information, rebates and tax credit information as well as contact information for materials and installation.

Engineering for the Earth is seeking high school and college interns to help with research to build a comprehensive state-by-state database of information to support sustainable technology. Work on the database will start by collecting zoning information, rebates and tax credit information as well as contact information for materials and installation.